Storage Warehouse Job Causes Protests

City Council Rescinds Action on Architect Supervisor

The city council at Monday night and Tuesday morning's session rescinded its action in employing Architect James T. Narbett to supervise the construction of an additional storage warehouse, which will involve the expenditure of $150,000.

It was estimated that Narbett's 5% commission would total $7,500, or more, and that this was an unnecessary expense when there were city employees capable of performing the duties required.

It was decided that the city engineer could manage the job and that his assistants—Building Inspector Wierda, Harbor Manager Misner and City Manager McVittie could help some; that this able corps of overseers would guarantee the faithful performance of the work at a minimum cost to the city.

There were a number of sharp rounds of repartee indulged in by members of the council, and also by the lobby, among the latter, a delegation from the trades council, headed by Secretary Dahl, who advocated the employment of local labor and the abolishment of an architect. He considered the city engineer fully capable of handling the job in all its simple details.

Councilman Ogborn strenuously objected to the hiring of Architect Narbett, and insisted that a distinctive line should be drawn between an engineering and an architectural job.

P. M. Sanford, local contractor, favored the contract plan. He said that the day labor and political plan was unsatisfactory and expensive.

Mayor Long rapped for order several times when arguments assumed a "fever heat."

The session reminded many of some of the old-time meetings, when the "portable" city hall was rambling around among the trees.

The council will meet again this (Friday) evening in adjourned session, at which time matters discussed at previous meetings will be acted upon.

$20,000 Is Distributed Among Pullman Employees

Pullman employees were tendered a Christmas present Tuesday when $20,000 back pay was distributed among them. This money was for wages retroactive to last May.

John Regello Steps Up

John Regello, paying teller at the First National Bank of Richmond, was remembered by the board of directors at their meeting Monday when they banded John a present worth while, a promotion to assistant cashier. John won his laurels easily. He is popular with the public, a speedy and accurate accountant, and is entitled to the promotion.

Commencement Exercises

Commencement exercises for the class of 1920, Richmond schools, will be held at Lincoln auditorium Tuesday evening, Dec. 28, at 8 o'clock. Invitations are now out, and the exercises will draw a B. R. O. house, it is said.

Elks Charity Minstrel Show Was Good None Better

The Elks Charity Minstrel Show at the T. & D. Theatre Wednesday and Thursday night beat all previous Christmas attractions given by this benevolent order.

All downstairs seats at one dollar each were sold for both shows long before the first day's performance.

The minstrel features of the show, the "1920 Follies," U. C. Jazz Orchestra, vocal and instrumental music by professional and amateur talent, were all good, and received generous encores.

The management of the affair is deserving of especial notice and praise. Remember, there will be many homes made happy with Christmas cheer, which counts. There will be dozens of substantial baskets hung on doors where little ones will thank the Elks' Santa Claus for the kind remembrances.

"Baby Mine," staged by the Alameda Elks in Neptune Palace theatre, filled the house to overflowing. The receipts were expended for Christmas baskets, hundreds of which were distributed among the needy.

If you have anything to sell you must advertise it. A little printer's ink often keeps the cobwebs away.

GARDEN OF DRUGS.

Of course in summer gardens occupy a prominent place in many conversations. Therefore we read in the Journal of Industrial and Engineering Chemistry of a novel garden which is to be established at the Oregon Agricultural college—one for the growing of drugs. This garden, however, is not the first of its kind in this country. There are already large drug gardens in Washington and California, which have been established, as has this new one, with a view to encouraging the growing of drugs. It is believed that a profitable industry can be established.—Chemical Round Table.

PRESERVE 1812 WAR RELIC

Commodore Perry's Flagship Niagara is to Have Permanent Resting Place at Erie, Pa.

The United States brig Niagara, that famous unit of Perry's fleet to which his flag was transferred on the foundering of the flagship Lawrence, is to have a permanent home in the port of Erie, Pa. After nearly a century in a watery grave in Misery bay, where it was sunk along with the other members of the fleet on the signing of the international treaty between Great Britain and the United States, the old Niagara, having been raised in connection with the centennial celebration in 1913 of Commodore Perry's victory, is far too much of a historic relic to permit of its being jostled about from place to place.

For the purpose of assuring it a permanent resting place, where it can be inspected by visitors from all parts of the world, the city of Erie has made presentation of the Niagara to the United States government. Congress at its last session accepted the gift and passed a bill directing the navy department to assume charge of the old relic and to keep it in fitting repair, and also erecting, if necessary, a suitable dock for its anchorage at the port of Erie.

Charlie Walker, former chief of police, is reported to be a member of the fire department at Mare Island navy yard.

Chanslor Ave. and 6th St. Scene of Fatal Accident

One of the most frightful accidents in the city's history occurred Wednesday evening when an automobile containing six men traveling west on Chanslor ave. crashed into a southbound street car at 6th and Chanslor, killing one of the occupants of the automobile and injuring five others.

The passengers of the street car were not injured, though badly shaken up by the impact, the car being jammed to the curbstone at the west side of Sixth street.

Geo. P. Ingram, driver of the automobile, a contractor, in trying to avoid the collision, swerved his machine, but not enough to clear, smashing into the front end on the street car, the crash being heard for blocks.

The occupants of the automobile were spilled out under the street car and wreckage like matches. Bruno De Luca, 45, residing at 3110 Roosevelt avenue, being instantly killed.

Members of the fire and police departments, assisted by others, soon had the car jacked up and released the injured men who were entangled and pinned down beneath the wreckage.

De Luca's body was cut in twain. Death was instantaneous.

The driver of the automobile, George P. Ingram of 1214 Macdonald, was severely cut about the body and hands.

The other occupants of the auto were: Charles Ingram, brother of the driver, shoulder wrenched; conscious of the body.

F. McCauley, St. Elmo apt., wrist artery severed, internal injuries; weak from loss of blood.

E. B. Rendell, 626 7th street, broken ribs and contusions of the body.

William Ganner, 1214 Macdonald, bruised face and body.

The motorman, H. T. Milroy, and Conductor Joe Snelling, were exonerated of all blame.

East Richmond Working For R.F.D.

A petition will no doubt be forwarded to Washington in a few days asking for rural mail delivery for East Richmond. Congressman Chas. F. Curry will be asked to intercede for the residents of this district, who are greatly inconvenienced by having no mail service delivery of any kind.

Two small girls entered a shoe store, and in reply to the salesman's polite inquiry, the other said sweetly:

"Please will you fit my little sister with a pair of shoes?"

"Certainly, miss," replied the man. "What style would you like—button or strap?"

"Oh, the style doesn't matter!" said the girl. "What I want to know is the size."

So the shopman produced his measure and presently informed her that the smaller girl took nine.

"Thank you!" said the larger of the two. Then she added confidentially: "That's all we want to know. There's a pair of shoes at the second-hand shop along the street and muver says she'll buy them for little Maude if they're the right size and not too dear."

Licensed to wed—At San Rafael Thursday, Dec. 16, 1920, John Sales and Miss Grace Renick, both of Richmond.

The Commercial Store at Third and Macdonald has undergone a number of improvements. Felix and Joe are live ones.

Passing of Samuel F. Jenkins, Pioneer Citizen

Samuel F. Jenkins, former postmaster of Richmond, a pioneer and citizen who has been identified with the civic affairs of Richmond since 1900, passed away at his home, 19 Summit Place, Monday. Deceased was 48 years of age.

Since returning from Southern California, where he went in search of health two years ago, he has been confined to his bed.

Although a quiet and unassuming man, Jenkins was always alert to the city's interests, and was one of the pioneers who started Richmond off on the road to prominence.

In conducting the postoffice of Richmond, there will be many former and present employees of the department who will regret the passing of this kindly man and good citizen.

Ferry Strike Decision Coming Today

A reply from the ferry company is promised the strikers at noon today. A settlement is expected on a satisfactory wage basis.

What has become of the fellow who was selling 'em for a dollar down and a dollar a week?

Season's Rainfall Far Above Normal

The season's rainfall to date is far above normal, the storm of last Saturday adding over an inch to a total 7.44 for the season. The rain-gauges now register 8.44, the major portion of which soaked into the ground, there being a small run off. The wells and springs will be replenished and bountiful crops will be assured the Golden State for 1921.

Passing of R. R. Dietzel

Died—R. R. Dietzel, Dec. 14, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Henry Wahl, in Oakland.

Mr. Dietzel was for many years a prominent figure in Richmond, a representative of the Municipal Improvement Co. of Oakland, with a Richmond branch office in the Berry building. He was the overseer of miles of street construction in Richmond, contracted for by Henry Wahl, president of the Improvement Co., his son-in-law. Deceased was a civil war veteran and took part in many of the functions of the local G. A. R. Post.

The passing of R. R. Dietzel will be mourned by many, as his friends were legion.

Funeral services will be conducted from the Truman undertaking parlors, 2936 Telegraph avenue, Oakland, at 2 p. m. today (Friday), under the auspices of Richmond Lodge, B. P. O. E. No. 1251, and the Ladies of the G. A. R. At the grave the local post of the G. A. R. will conduct the grave ceremonies.

Funeral of Mrs. Martha Wilson

The funeral of Mrs. Martha Wilson of 1175 San Pablo avenue, who was run down by an automobile and killed Thursday of last week, was held Monday, Dec. 13.

Mrs. Wilson was struck by a car driven by Mrs. Florence M. Daley of 2318 Grove street. Mrs. Daley lost control of her car when it skidded. She was exonerated from all blame at the coroner's inquest.

Mrs. Wilson was well known in Albany and for a number of years has conducted a small store near the place near where she met her death.

Suit was filed in the superior court Monday at Martinez by Attorney Clare D. Horner, against Wm. Stiller and H. Barth, for the John Nystrom Co., to recover $21,150 alleged to be due on a mortgage given on a tract of land known as the 'Richmond-California Heights' 47 acres near Grand Canyon Park.

Defendants had in 1914 subdivided the tract with the intention of putting it on the market, when the slump came in real estate and they subsequently defaulted in their payments.

RANDOM COMMENT

Max Thelen has been making some close observations in Washington. He says the administration is lacking in efficiency and urges reorganization. As an illustration or example of the business acumen displayed by congress, Thelen says the government printing office is now turning out sixteen different kinds of cook books. As the man from Marion is a practical printer, there will probably be some "phalanxing" when he assumes the position of "general foreman" at Washington.

"The Star" Suspends

Editor James H. Barry has suspended publication of his San Francisco Star indefinitely. The Star has twinkled brightly for 37 years, but during the war and since has been issued monthly. Editor Barry says there is nothing in it except "work," and that a monthly is not speedy enough, excepting the cost of book paper, which is a plenty.

The Star will be missed by "ye bush editors," who always admire Bro. Barry's originality. The literary gems of this fearless veteran newspaperman will be missed, and it is hoped that after a brief rest he will resume the weekly publication of The Star.

Everything Lovely In Hootch Circles

It is said the hootch brewers' union has adjusted the overtime dispute, and that the stills are operating once more without interruption. On account of the large number of bootleggers, local venders will adopt a badge to prevent confusion in trying to sell goods to each other.—(1251)

More Rains Coming

More moisture is predicted by weather probs at San Francisco. Friday and Saturday and probably Sunday, will be wet days.

MARTINEZ, Dec. 16.—The Japanese tanker Notoro arrived here today where she is being loaded with fuel oil for naval vessels in Japan.

This is the first time the Japanese government has sent vessels here for that purpose. It is stated that several more vessels are on their way from Japan to take cargoes of fuel oil.

Contra Costa County

Assistant County Superintendent of Schools L. S. Drew has resigned his position to become effective the first of the year. He has accepted a position offered him as manager for Contra Costa county of an eastern correspondence school.

The Franklin canyon road is not open, says Engineer Arnold. Motorists have interfered with the construction work, by tearing down barricades, etc. The road will be completed by Christmas.

Santa Fe Continues to Use S. P. Mole at Oakland

The Santa Fe terminal tangle is unchanged, and the question of authority in the matter is far from being determined.

The Southern Pacific strongly questions the jurisdiction of both state railroad commission and interstate commerce commission.

In the meantime the railroad commission has resumed taking testimony, regardless of the point of jurisdiction.

Later—The hearing before the commission was today adjourned to the 28th.

Genevieve Cleasby Estate

Probate of the estate of Genevieve Cleasby of Richmond, who died May 20, is asked by her husband, Clifford E. Cleasby in a petition filed in probate court Monday. The estate consists of personal property valued at $500 and war risk insurance policy for $10,000 in which she was the beneficiary by a former husband, Charles J. Martin, who died in France while with the expeditionary forces. Tsar N. Calfee is attorney for petitioner.

George's Sister Arrives From Greece

George Calligerou of the Station Cafe, 16th street, near Macdonald, is happy, for his sister Frosco arrived from Greece Sunday, Dec. 5, and will make Richmond her future home. George served Uncle Sam overseas in the world war, and the number of honor medals he carries proves he was a good soldier—and was in some hard fought battles.

CARNIVAL

One day, ere high hill winds grow harsh.

And aspen leaves begin to fall.

The cardinal flowers beside the marsh

Will hint at nearing carnival.

There will be quickening of choirs,

From all the crickets such a din.

And aspirations and desires

From the cicada violin.

And then the pageant pomp will come.

The tapestries of maple trees,

And from the wild sunflower the hum

Of the late amber belted bees.

Beneath the tank the jewel flowers,

The tossing of the pink-tipped grass.

The goldenrod—these will be ours

To seal in Memory's shining glass,

To guard our hearts against the time

Of winter, with its icy thrall.

Till with its ancient dial time

To the last carnival shall call.

—Clinton Scollard in the New York Sun Herald.

The London Barge.

"American soldiers in London,"

a great deal of interest in the barges who row enormous canal boats up and down the Thames.

"A soldier stood on the Black-friars bridge one day watching a barge row his canal boat, or barge.

It was an enormous barge; half a dozen oarsmen could hardly have managed it, but the lone barge wielded his oar undismayed and the barge approached the soldier on the bridge at the rate of about an inch a minute.

"The soldier watched the barge a long time, and, when the barge was at last reached, he took the cigarette from his mouth and shouted down to the plucky oarsman:

"Well, so long, old-timer! Don't forget to bring us a parrot back with you!"—Washington Star.

PREPARE CAPONS

FOR BEST PRICE

No Feed or Water Should Be Given for 24 Hours Before Fowls Are Killed.

STICKING METHOD FAVORED

Some Feathers Should Be Allowed to Remain as Distinguishing Mark—Pack in Neat Boxes of Most Convenient Size.

Capons selected for killing should be confined for 24 hours without feed or water to empty their crops completely. The usual method of killing is known as the sticking method. The fowl is hung up by the feet, the head in the left hand, and the whole body stretched to full length. The month is forced open and the blood vessels at the back of the throat are severed with a sharp narrow-bladed knife. The knife is then turned and the point plunged through the roof of the mouth to a point just behind and between the eyes, piercing the brain. The muscles are relaxed and the feathers come out easily.

Dry Picking Is Best.

Capons should always be dry picked, as they look much better and as some of the feathers should be left on. The feathers of the neck and head, the tail feathers, those a short way up the back, the feathers of the last two joints of the wing, and those of the leg, about one-third of the way from knee to hip joint, should be left on. These feathers, together with the head of the capon, serve to distinguish it from other classes of poultry on the market, and consequently should never be removed. In packing, be careful not to tear the skin. Bad tears, poultry specialists of the United States department of agriculture say, should be sewn up. Capons scolded and picked bare bring very little, if any, better prices than other poultry in the same condition.

Most markets require capons to be undrawn and the head and feet left on. Care should be used to cleanse the head and feet of all signs of blood and filth.

Pack in Neat Box.

After picking, the carcasses are hung in a cool place until the animal heat has entirely left the body, when they are ready to be packed. Like other poultry they should be packed in boxes of convenient size, holding a dozen carcasses, or in barrels. Every attention should be given to neatness and attractiveness, as this helps the sale and the price. During the time of year when most capons are marketed—January, February and March—no ice is necessary, but if for any reason they are shipped in warm weather they should be packed in ice.

LATE MOLTERS ARE FAVORED

Hens That Undergo Transformation During July and August Are Not Best Layers.

It has been observed that the best layers usually molt during the latter part of September or the months of October, November and December. Hens that molt during July and August are not the profitable hens, as they rest for three or four months while they grow their new feathers and will not start in laying until the following February or March. These hens are not the kind to use either in the breeding pen or the laying pen. In some cases, the early hatched pullets of the year previous will start molting during June, and a little judgment should be exercised in such cases. A check should be made with other tests.

Sudan Grass for Feed.

The feeding value of sudan grass is equal to timothy hay. In localities where soy beans or cowpeas do well these legumes may be grown in mixtures with the sudan grass.

His Specialty.

THE SANDMAN STORY

THE SAD PRINCESS

ONCE upon a time there was a beautiful princess named Edna. At her christening party the king announced that he was determined she should never know pain or sorrow. And he told his wise men that he was determined to shield her from all unpleasant sights in order to secure her happiness.

"You are making a mistake, Your Majesty," sighed a wise old man, "and you will regret it. Let her live among her people and know life as it is."

But the king would not listen. He shut Edna up in a lovely palace of crystal. All around were rose gardens, parks and giant trees, lakes with fountains and swans. Only young grown wearisome. Maybe out here there is something different."

Then, for the first time in her life, she saw a tumbledown hut on the edge of a marsh. Coming down the road was an old man, hobbling with a crutch. At a turn in the way was a blind beggar asking alms. In the gutter ragged children played and bent mothers carried loads of wood upon their backs. For the first time she saw life with its work, its pains, its misfortunes, its poverty and—its lessons. She had never known that there was pain, sickness or sorrow in the world before. Struck with terror, she galloped home and wept; then, rising with a bright face dawning through tears, she called her maids.

"No more of this," she said. "I am unhappy shut up from the world—I want to share its sorrows as well as its joys. And now that I see there is so much to be done, so much to help, I know I will find my happiness in helping."

So the great estate was turned over to the villagers for a park, the marsh was drained, the huts were replaced with comfortable cottages, the aged were given a home, the sick were sent to a hospital and schools were started. And the princess was the happiest of all. No longer sad, she went about, busy from morn till night, a smile on her face, helping all who needed aid and seeing that every one in her land got justice, care and kindness.

The old king was surprised. His sad daughter was now a model of happiness and health and her domain a scene of busy comfort.

One evening the same wise old man who had been at the christening of the princess came upon the king as he sat alone.

"I see your young daughter, the princess, has found the right way. In spite of your mistaken efforts," smiled the old man, "you ought to be glad you have not ruined her life. She was a wise girl to take things in her own hands and find happiness as she did. Living for one's self in luxury only brings discontent. And only in doing for others in a busy life can happiness be found."

COMING DOWN THE ROAD WAS AN OLD MAN

handsome lads and maids waited on her—she never saw anything old, ugly or unhappy; only everything which was beautiful and gay.

But as she grew older she seemed to weary of this luxury. For hours she would sit alone watching the wild geese flying overhead or the twinkling lights in a far-off village. Her face grew sad and in vain her father tried to brighten her life.

One day she mounted her pony, and while her guards were lurching she rode rapidly through the gate and galloped alone outside of her grounds.

"I am tired of my home," she murmured, as strange sights came into view. "The palace, the gardens, the rich robes and constant gaiety have grown wearisome. Maybe out here there is something different."

Then, for the first time in her life, she saw a tumbledown hut on the edge of a marsh. Coming down the road was an old man, hobbling with a crutch. Oil Products Still Subject to Government Interference

In the face of the greatest combination of obstacles ever heaped up against a single industry, the crude oil producers have turned the tide of under-production that was eating up all stored supplies. Crude oil production has been increased during the past year, but is still subject to governmental interference and even confiscation of products for naval use at prices far below the world market.

Excessive governmental pressure has held down production and caused uncertainty to refiners of the mineral oils in the face of an increasing domestic and world demand and the wonder is that these products can be served at present prices.

Oil production is a great national problem and policies of encouragement are necessary to hold our country the strongest in the world in this most important natural resource. The adoption of improved refining processes will be able to help meet demands.

With governmental and political methods far less efficient than industrial business policies, this should be an industry where the "hands-off" theory would result in relief to consumers and producers.

While our national government has been liberal in allowing capital of other countries to acquire oil lands, develop refineries and distributing systems in our country, the State Department has been slow in demanding the same rights for United States investors in other countries.

Attractive Teeth Win Friends as Well as Praise

In recruiting soldiers for the world war Uncle Sam discovered that 75% of the young men had defective teeth, and that a large percentage of them were afflicted with physical ailments directly attributed to improper care of the teeth.

How often do we see young persons, and especially young men addicted to the tobacco habit, their teeth coated with a yellow film, the breeding places for pyorrhea with its millions of germs, the seat and starting place of many diseases of the human body.

Defective teeth may turn many against you—often your best friends. Your teeth are one of the most striking characteristics of your personality, a deciding factor in the impression you make. Decayed teeth and a stale tobacco breath, have caused many young men to lose out in winning their best girls.

Why Not Give Business a Chance

Western legislatures should learn the lesson of the recent election, where the people voted down nearly every initiative bill on the ballot.

What is the meaning of this? Some of the bills had merit and many were dangerous propositions. People are tired of too much legislation.

Legislation that affects investments, securities, and the very basis of credit, like banking and insurance, should be taken up gingerly.

Give the business of our country a chance to come back and during the period of readjustment hamper it as little as possible with experiments.

State and federal interference with business and industries has been carried too far and the country wants a rest from law-making.

ANCIENT DENTISTRY.

A paper read by Lieut. Commander George H. Reed, D. C., U. S. N., before the National First Aid Association of America, gives some interesting facts about ancient dentistry. It reads in part as follows, as quoted in First Aid:

"Dental surgery is found in the mouths of Egyptian mummies and dug up in the skulls of prehistoric man. Among the examples of ancient dental skill to be found in our museums are many gold or silver dentisclips, or toothpicks.

"Practically the first written record of the treatment of teeth was found in Egypt in 1873, in a papyrus written probably about 1550 B. C. The papyrus speaks of inflammation of the gums and toothache among other references to dental ailments."

KANSAS BIRDS.

According to a paper on behalf of bird protection published by the State Horticultural society of Kansas, the bird population of that state is 256,000,000, which every year eat enough insects to fill 480 trains of 50 cars each—21,000 cars of a minimum weight of 24,000 pounds to the car. Those insect trains would be long enough to reach from Oklahoma to Nebraska. Reduced to pounds, it is figured that the birds of Kansas every year eat 576,000,000 pounds of insects. It is hard to conceive the dollars and cents value of the insect-eating birds to the Kansas farmer.
